

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A surface protection film for optical films contains a base material film containing a poly(lactic acid)-based film; an optical film having a surface protection film applied thereto contains, as the surface protection film, the surface protection film described above; and an image display device having a surface protection film applied thereto contains, as the surface protection film, the surface protection film described above.